WEEKLY MEDITATION for the 22nd Sunday in Ordinary Time

"Deny yourself, take up your cross and follow me."

We need to ask these questions as we examine our conscience. A true disciple asks, "Am I willing to sacrifice something for the kingdom?" How can I offer even the day-to-day sacrifices of my faith that demand things I don't want to do? Can I sacrifice some of my time in order to visit a homeless shelter or soup kitchen? Can I sacrifice my job security and refuse to "go along" with a policy that is unjust? Can I sacrifice my need to be in control and let Christ do with me whatever he may will? Self denial means evicting selfish thoughts, desires and tendencies from our hearts and letting God fill our hearts. It also means being cleansed of all evil habits, enthroning God in in our hearts and sharing that God with others.

DENY

WISDOM'S CORNER

Jesuit thinking...

Three holy, religious priests, a Dominican, a Franciscan, and a Jesuit were in the same hospice. All were near death. One evening, the Angel of Death appeared before them and informed them that it was their time. He said, however, that each could have a final request before accompanying him from this world as they had scrupulously practiced the triple norms of Christian discipleship in their pretty long lives. The Dominican went first and he asked to gaze upon the face of his Savior. In an instant the face of Christ appeared before him. He was satisfied and felt he could die with no regrets. The Franciscan was next. He asked to touch the wounds in the hands and feet of Jesus before he died. No sooner than Christ appeared and invited him, as he did Thomas, to examine His wounds. The dying priest touched Christ's hands and feet, wept with joy and was content and at peace. Finally the angel turned to the Jesuit and asked his final request. Without hesitation the Jesuit replied: "I'd like a second opinion."

THOUGHT OF THE WEEK

"There is a magnet in your heart that will attract true friends. That magnet is unselfishness, thinking of others first."

Deny yourself

Dear Friends,

Today Jesus talks about self-denial. Our selfish interests never make us happy. Recently I came across Los Angeles Times article by Jessica Guynn "Where money is no object" about young millionaires and billionaires. "Flashy cars? Meh. Young tech stars are putting their wealth into social causes and start-up ventures. The culture measures achievement by what entrepreneurs build, not what they buy." "Wealth needs a purpose greater than big houses and flashy cars," said Patzer, founder of Mint.com

At 27, Dustin Moskovitz is the world's youngest billionaire, according to Forbes. His thinking is interesting: "Things can't bring you happiness," Moskovitz said. "I have pictured myself owning expensive things and easily came to the conclusion that I would not have a materially more meaningful life because of them." Zuckerberg, a well known Facebook guy is another billionaire living below his means. For years, he crashed in a tiny apartment with a mattress on the floor and dial-up Internet access. Zuckerberg, who has listed "minimalism" and "eliminating desire" as interests on his Facebook profile, drives an Acura.

These technology millionaires and billionaires are not obsessed with Hollywood celebrities, fancy cars, expensive homes, flashy clothes, jewelry, being popular, or with themselves. They would rather buy an incubator in Thailand, help the poor schools in Newark, or silently give the money to the victims in Haiti. Denying yourself is to be unselfish financially, materially, emotionally, and intellectually. Let's look around us. What is truly important?

All those who are celebrating their 5th, 10th, 15th, 20th, 25th, 30th, etc., please contact our rectory so that we can celebrate and renew our vows before the Lord.

Our guest from Dubrovnik

This year as in years past we will welcome a representative from the American College of Management and Technology from Dubrovnik, who will present information about this college. We ask all those who have students who are thinking about where to attend college to attend this presentation on Sunday, September 25th. Please mark your calendars.
